

BATCH D — COMPLETE EXTRACTIONS

44 entries: S301–S336 (synthetic) + H001–H008 (real corpus, Haruf)
Date: 2026-08-16

SUB-BATCH 1 — S301–S320 (Synthetic, Sampler v2)

The parsed PDF result has been saved to `uploaded_files/batch_D_sub1.pdf.json`. That JSON contains the converted markdown content, unique embedded image objects, and PDF properties such as title, author, and page count. That JSON also contains page-level image references. This PDF doesn't have embedded images. The converted markdown content of this PDF file has 33968 characters, the first 32000 snippet is: SYNTHETIC EXTRACTIONS — BATCH D, SUB-BATCH 1

Entries: S301–S320

Sampler version: v2 (SIBLING/STRANGER matrix rows added; AMBIGUOUS UNRESOLVED=40%)

Priority corrections: UNRESOLVED meaning determinacy, STRANGER/SIBLING relationships,

NAMED at DEATH/CONFESSION, AMBIGUOUS with genuine open-endedness

Sub-batch discipline: review passage content by eye before continuing to sub-batch 2

[S301] AMBIGUOUS

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: STRANGER | DISTANT

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PUBLIC

LOCATION: OUTDOOR

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: Two strangers who have been sitting near each other on a long train journey would not be expected to interact.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: the woman

FOCAL_RESPONDER: the man

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: closing her book when the train enters the tunnel

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: ATMOSPHERIC

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: []

OBSERVER: UNKNOWN

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: MEDIUM

MEANING_DETERMINACY: UNRESOLVED

STRUCTURE: ROUTINE

They had been in the same compartment for four hours without speaking. When the train entered the long tunnel before the city, she closed her book. She did not put it away. She held it closed in her lap and looked at the dark window. He noticed. When the train came out of the tunnel she opened it again.

TRIGGER: Two strangers have been sharing a train compartment for four hours. The train enters a long tunnel.

RESPONSE: She closes her book and looks at the dark window. When the tunnel ends she opens it again.

NOTE: The closing of the book is the behavioral unit — she does not put it away; she closes it and holds it. Whether she closes it because the tunnel makes reading impossible, or because the darkness produces something she needs to sit with, or because she is aware of him and the darkness changes the register of that awareness, is MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE. The opening when the tunnel ends is the behavioral completion: whatever the tunnel was, it is over. MEANING_DETERMINACY: UNRESOLVED — the text deliberately withholds resolution.

[S302] NAMED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: SIBLING | ESTABLISHED

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A sibling who has just been told their brother has died would be expected to respond with words.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Petra

□FOCAL_RESPONDER: N/A (alone)

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: going to the kitchen and washing the single cup in the sink

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: DISPLACEMENT

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [PRACTICAL_CARE]

OBSERVER: NONE

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: ALIGNED

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: DEATH

She went to the kitchen. There was one cup in the sink — her own, from that morning. She washed it. She dried it. She put it away. She was not doing it because it needed doing. She was doing it because her hands needed to be doing something that had a beginning and an end, and the cup was the only available thing.

TRIGGER: Petra has just received a phone call telling her that her brother Lukas has died.

RESPONSE: She goes to the kitchen and washes the single cup in the sink.

NOTE: The narrator names the interior state directly: "She was not doing it because it needed doing. She was doing it because her hands needed to be doing something that had a beginning and an end, and the cup was the only available thing." NAMED at DEATH: the naming is necessary because the behavioral act (washing a cup) is entirely ordinary and would carry no weight without the interior state named. The specificity — one cup, her own, from that morning — is the behavioral precision that makes the naming land.

[S303] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: STRANGER | DISTANT

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PUBLIC

LOCATION: INSTITUTIONAL

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A person sitting alone in a hospital corridor would not be expected to interact with other people waiting.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: the old man

FOCAL_RESPONDER: the young woman

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: sliding his newspaper along the bench toward her without speaking

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PRACTICAL_CARE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [SILENCE]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: CRISIS

She had been sitting with nothing to do for two hours. He had been reading the same newspaper for most of that time. At some point he folded it and slid it along the bench toward her. He did not look at her. She picked it up. Neither of them said anything.

TRIGGER: The young woman has been sitting in a hospital corridor for two hours with nothing to do. The old man has been reading a newspaper.

RESPONSE: He slides the newspaper toward her without looking at her or speaking. She takes it.

NOTE: The sliding of the newspaper is the behavioral unit — he does not offer it, does not look at her, does not speak. He simply moves it toward her. The behavioral expression of the care that requires no acknowledgment: he has noticed her having nothing to do, and the newspaper is the only available thing. She takes it without speaking: the behavioral expression of the acceptance of the care on the same terms it was offered.

[S304] AMBIGUOUS

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

□RELATIONSHIP: SIBLING | ESTABLISHED

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A sibling who has been asked a direct question would be expected to answer it.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Oskar

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Lena

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: answering the question and then immediately asking about her children for the fourth time

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: DEFLECTION

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [ACCUMULATION]

OBSERVER: UNKNOWN

SELF_REPORT: PRESENT

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: PARTIAL

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: MEDIUM

MEANING_DETERMINACY: MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE

STRUCTURE: ESCALATION

"How are you really?" Lena asked. "Fine," Oskar said. "How's Maja doing in school?" It was the fourth time he had asked about Maja in the same call. Lena told him. He listened carefully. She could not tell whether he was asking because he genuinely wanted to know, or because Maja was the only subject that felt safe.

TRIGGER: Lena has asked Oskar how he really is, six months after his divorce.

RESPONSE: He says fine and asks about Maja for the fourth time in the call.

NOTE: The fourth asking about Maja is the behavioral unit. Lena names the ambiguity directly: "She could not tell whether he was asking because he genuinely wanted to know, or because Maja was the only subject that felt safe." SELF_REPORT: PRESENT ("Fine").

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: PARTIAL.

MEANING_DETERMINACY: MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE — the accumulation of the same question is legible as either genuine interest or deflection, and the text does not resolve which.

[S305] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: SIBLING | ESTABLISHED

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: Two siblings clearing out a parent's house would be expected to divide the work and speak to each other.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Lukas

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Petra

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: working in different rooms without coordinating

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: SILENCE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [WITHDRAWAL]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: AFTERMATH

They had been in the house for three hours. Lukas had taken the upstairs; Petra had taken the kitchen and the living room. They had not discussed this. They had simply gone to different parts of the house and worked. When they met in the hallway to carry boxes to the car, they did not speak about what they had found.

TRIGGER: Lukas and Petra are clearing out their mother's house the week after her funeral.

RESPONSE: They work in different rooms without coordinating or speaking about what they find.

□NOTE: The working in different rooms is the behavioral unit — they have not discussed the division; they have simply gone to different parts of the house. The behavioral expression of the grief that cannot be shared directly: they are doing the same thing in the same house and not doing it together. The not-speaking-about-what-they-found is the behavioral completion: whatever each of them found, it stays in the room where they found it.

[S306] NAMED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: FRIENDSHIP | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A friend who has been asked to explain a long absence would be expected to explain it.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Sigrid

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Nora

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: explaining it and then beginning to cry before she has finished

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: INVOLUNTARY

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: []

OBSERVER: SELF_BLIND

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: ALIGNED

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: CONFESSION

She had explained it three times in her head and had not cried. She explained it now and began to cry before she had finished. She did not know why the crying came now and not before. She thought it was probably because Nora was listening, and she had not had anyone listen before.

TRIGGER: Nora has asked Sigrid to explain why she has been absent for six months.

RESPONSE: Sigrid begins to explain and starts crying before she finishes.

NOTE: The narrator names the interior state directly: "She did not know why the crying came now and not before. She thought it was probably because Nora was listening, and she had not had anyone listen before." NAMED at CONFESSION: the naming is necessary because the behavioral act (crying mid-explanation) is unexpected and requires the narrator's intervention to be legible. The specific quality: not grief at the content of the explanation, but the specific response to being heard for the first time.

[S307] AMBIGUOUS

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: STRANGER | DISTANT

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PUBLIC

LOCATION: OUTDOOR

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A stranger who has helped someone would be expected to accept thanks and leave.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: the man

FOCAL_RESPONDER: the woman

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: staying a moment after she has thanked him

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: ATMOSPHERIC

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: []

OBSERVER: UNKNOWN

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: MEDIUM

MEANING_DETERMINACY: UNRESOLVED

□STRUCTURE: OPENING

He had helped her carry the stroller down the steps. She had thanked him. He had said it was nothing. He did not leave immediately. He stood there for a moment — not intrusively, not expectantly, just present. Then he left. She did not know what the moment was.

TRIGGER: A stranger has helped the woman carry her stroller down the steps. She has thanked him.

RESPONSE: He stays for a moment after being thanked, then leaves.

NOTE: The staying for a moment is the behavioral unit — the transaction is complete; he stays anyway. Whether he stays because he is checking she is all right, or because the moment of contact produced something he is not ready to end, or simply because he is not in a hurry, is

MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE. She does not know what the moment was: the behavioral evidence that the signal is genuinely unresolved. MEANING_DETERMINACY: UNRESOLVED.

[S308] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: SIBLING | ESTABLISHED

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A sibling who has been asked for advice would be expected to give it.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Petra

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Lukas

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: asking three questions before giving any opinion

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: SILENCE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [OMISSION]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: ESCALATION

"What do you think I should do?" Lukas asked. "When did you decide?" Petra said. He told her.

"And you've spoken to a lawyer?" He had. "And Maja knows?" She did. Petra nodded. "Then I think you already know what you're going to do," she said.

TRIGGER: Lukas has asked Petra for her opinion about a major decision he is facing.

RESPONSE: Petra asks three questions before giving any opinion, then says he already knows.

NOTE: The three questions are the behavioral unit — she asks three questions and gives no direct opinion. The "then I think you already know what you're going to do" is the behavioral expression of the conclusion the questions produced: she has gathered enough information to know that the decision is already made, and her opinion is not what he is actually asking for.

[S309] AMBIGUOUS

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: MARITAL | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A spouse who has been given a gift would be expected to respond to it.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Elsa

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Gunnar

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: thanking him and then putting the gift in the drawer without opening it

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: OMISSION

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [WITHDRAWAL]

OBSERVER: UNKNOWN

SELF_REPORT: PRESENT

□SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: PARTIAL

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: MEDIUM

MEANING_DETERMINACY: MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE

STRUCTURE: ROUTINE

He had left it on the kitchen table. She thanked him when she came in. She picked it up, looked at it, and put it in the drawer. "I'll open it later," she said. "I want to save it." He said that was fine. She did not open it that evening. He did not know whether she was saving it or avoiding it.

TRIGGER: Gunnar has left a gift for Elsa on the kitchen table.

RESPONSE: She thanks him, puts it in the drawer without opening it, and says she wants to save it.

NOTE: The putting in the drawer is the behavioral unit. SELF_REPORT: PRESENT ("I want to save it"). SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: PARTIAL — she does put it away as she said, but the not-opening-it-that-evening is the behavioral qualification. Gunnar names the ambiguity directly: "He did not know whether she was saving it or avoiding it." MEANING_DETERMINACY: MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE.

[S310] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: STRANGER | DISTANT

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PUBLIC

LOCATION: OTHER (café)

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A stranger who has been sitting at the next table would not be expected to interact.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: the older woman

FOCAL_RESPONDER: the young man

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: leaving her umbrella at his table when she goes

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PRACTICAL_CARE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [PROXY]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: DEPARTURE

She had been at the next table for an hour. When she left she paused, looked at the window, and left her umbrella leaning against his table. It was raining. He had no umbrella. She did not look at him. She went out into the rain without it.

TRIGGER: The older woman is leaving the café. It is raining. The young man at the next table has no umbrella.

RESPONSE: She leaves her umbrella at his table without looking at him or speaking, and goes out into the rain.

NOTE: The leaving of the umbrella is the behavioral unit — she does not offer it, does not look at him, does not speak. She leaves it and goes out into the rain. The behavioral expression of the care that requires no acknowledgment and no reciprocity: she has noticed he has no umbrella, and the umbrella is the only available thing. The going out into the rain is the behavioral completion: she has given it; she does not need it back.

[S311] NAMED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: SIBLING | ESTABLISHED

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A sibling who has just been told their sister is terminally ill would be expected to respond with words.

□BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Lukas

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Petra

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: asking if she wants tea

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PRACTICAL_CARE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [DEFLECTION]

OBSERVER: SELF_AWARE

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: CONTRADICTORY

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: DEATH

Petra had just finished telling him. Lukas asked if she wanted tea. She said no. He went to the kitchen and made it anyway. He stood at the counter and drank his own. He was not calm. He was performing calm, and he knew he was performing it, and the tea was the only instrument available for the performance.

TRIGGER: Petra has just told Lukas that her illness is terminal.

RESPONSE: He asks if she wants tea. She says no. He makes it anyway and drinks his own at the counter.

NOTE: The narrator names the interior state directly: "He was not calm. He was performing calm, and he knew he was performing it, and the tea was the only instrument available for the performance." NAMED at DEATH: the naming is necessary because the behavioral act (making tea) reads as composure. The narrator specifies the precise quality: not calm but the performance of calm, with the specific detail that he knows he is performing it.

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: CONTRADICTORY

— the named state contradicts the behavioral performance.

[S312] AMBIGUOUS

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: PROFESSIONAL | ESTABLISHED

POWER: holder=RESPONDER | degree=MODERATE | basis=EMPLOYMENT

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: SEMI_PUBLIC

LOCATION: WORKPLACE

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A colleague who has been given a document would be expected to read it and respond.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Bergström

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Annika

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: returning the document with a single word written in the margin

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: OMISSION

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [SILENCE]

OBSERVER: UNKNOWN

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: MEDIUM

MEANING_DETERMINACY: UNRESOLVED

STRUCTURE: ESCALATION

NOTE: MECHANISM_SOURCE: UNMAPPED_RELATIONSHIP
(PROFESSIONAL has no matrix row)

She had given him thirty pages. He returned it with one word written in the margin of page twelve: "Yes." Nothing else. No context. No indication of what the yes referred to. She read page twelve three times. She was not sure she understood what he had agreed to.

TRIGGER: Annika has asked Bergström to review her thirty-page proposal.

RESPONSE: He returns it with one word — "Yes" — written in the margin of page twelve, with no other annotation.

NOTE: The single word is the behavioral unit — thirty pages, one word, no context. Whether the yes is agreement with the argument on page twelve, or a general endorsement of the proposal, or a response to something she wrote that she has now forgotten, is MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE. She reads page twelve three times and is not sure: the behavioral evidence that the signal is genuinely □unresolved. MEANING_DETERMINACY: UNRESOLVED.

[S313] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: SIBLING | ESTABLISHED

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: Two siblings who have not spoken in a year would be expected to have a difficult first conversation.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Petra

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Lukas

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: talking about their mother for an hour without mentioning the argument

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: OMISSION

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [DEFLECTION]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: ARRIVAL

*They had not spoken in a year: When Lukas called, Petra answered.
They talked about their mother* for an hour — her health, her garden, the thing she had said at Christmas. They did not mention the argument. When they hung up Petra sat for a while. It was the best conversation they had had in years.

TRIGGER: Lukas has called Petra for the first time in a year, after an argument that ended their contact.

RESPONSE: They talk about their mother for an hour without mentioning the argument.

NOTE: The not-mentioning is the behavioral unit — they talk for an hour; the argument is not mentioned. The behavioral expression of the decision to return without naming the return: they are speaking again, and the speaking is the reconciliation, and the reconciliation does not require the argument to be named. Petra's sitting afterward is the behavioral evidence of what the hour cost and gave: "It was the best conversation they had had in years."

[S314] AMBIGUOUS

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: ROMANTIC | ESTABLISHED

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A person who has been asked a direct question by their partner would be expected to answer it.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Astrid

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Leif

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: answering yes and then going to stand at the window for a long time

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: WITHDRAWAL

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [ATMOSPHERIC]

OBSERVER: UNKNOWN

SELF_REPORT: PRESENT

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: PARTIAL

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: MEDIUM

MEANING_DETERMINACY: MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE

STRUCTURE: ESCALATION

"Are you happy?" Leif asked. "Yes," Astrid said. She went to the window. She stood there for a long time — long enough that he noticed, long enough that he did not ask again. When she came back

□she sat down and picked up her book. He could not tell whether the window had been the yes or the qualification of it.

TRIGGER: Leif has asked Astrid directly whether she is happy.

RESPONSE: She says yes and goes to stand at the window for a long time.

NOTE: The window is the behavioral unit — she says yes and goes to the window. SELF_REPORT:

PRESENT ("Yes"). SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: PARTIAL — the yes may be genuine, but the long standing at the window is the behavioral qualification. Leif names the ambiguity directly: "He could not tell whether the window had been the yes or the qualification of it."

MEANING_DETERMINACY:

MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE.

[S315] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: STRANGER | DISTANT

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PUBLIC

LOCATION: OUTDOOR

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A stranger who has witnessed someone drop something would be expected to return it and leave.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: the young woman

FOCAL_RESPONDER: the old man

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: picking up his hat and handing it back without looking at his face

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PRACTICAL_CARE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [SILENCE]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: ROUTINE

NOTE: MECHANISM_SOURCE: UNMAPPED_RELATIONSHIP (STRANGER has no matrix row)

The wind took his hat. She was closer to it than he was. She picked it up and handed it back without looking at his face — at his hands, at the hat, but not at his face.

He said thank you.
She said nothing and walked on.

TRIGGER: The wind has blown the old man's hat away. The young woman is closer to it.

RESPONSE: She picks it up and hands it back without looking at his face.
She says nothing and walks on.

NOTE: The not-looking-at-his-face is the behavioral unit — she picks it up and hands it back, but she looks at his hands, at the hat, not at his face. The behavioral expression of the care that does not want acknowledgment: she is doing the thing without making it a transaction that requires a response. The saying nothing and walking on is the behavioral completion of the same decision.

[S316] NAMED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: PARENTAL | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=ACTOR | degree=MODERATE |
basis=PARENTAL_AUTHORITY

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A parent who has been told their child is getting divorced would be expected to respond with concern.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: the father

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Mikael

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: asking one question and then going to fix the broken gate

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: DISPLACEMENT

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [PRACTICAL_CARE]

OBSERVER: SELF_AWARE

□SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: CONTRADICTORY

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: CRISIS

Mikael told him. His father asked one question: "Are the children all right?" Mikael said yes.

His father said he would fix the gate — it had been sticking for months. He went out to the shed.

Mikael heard him working for an hour. He was not fixing the gate. He was doing the only thing he knew how to do with his hands when the world had gone wrong, and the gate was the available thing.

TRIGGER: Mikael has just told his father he is getting divorced.

RESPONSE: The father asks one question about the children, then goes to fix the gate.

NOTE: The narrator names the interior state directly: "He was not fixing the gate. He was doing the only thing he knew how to do with his hands when the world had gone wrong, and the gate was the available thing." NAMED at CRISIS: the naming is necessary because the behavioral act (fixing a gate) reads as avoidance. The narrator specifies the precise quality: not avoidance but the specific need to do something with the hands when the world has gone wrong. SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT:

CONTRADICTORY — the practical action contradicts the named interior state.

[S317] AMBIGUOUS

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: FRIENDSHIP | ESTABLISHED

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A friend who has been asked whether they are angry would be expected to answer.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Dag

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Mikael

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: saying no and then suggesting they go for a walk

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: DEFLECTION

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [DISPLACEMENT]

OBSERVER: UNKNOWN

SELF_REPORT: PRESENT

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: PARTIAL

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: MEDIUM

MEANING_DETERMINACY: MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE

STRUCTURE: ESCALATION

"Are you angry with me?" Mikael asked. "No," Dag said. "Do you want to go for a walk?" They went. They walked for an hour. They talked about other things. When they came back Mikael said, "Thank you." Dag said, "For what?" Mikael said, "For the walk." Dag could not tell whether Mikael had understood or whether he was being polite.

TRIGGER: Mikael has asked Dag directly whether he is angry with him.

RESPONSE: Dag says no and immediately suggests a walk. Mikael thanks him for the walk afterward.

NOTE: The walk suggestion is the behavioral unit. SELF_REPORT:
PRESENT ("No"). SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT:
PARTIAL — the no may be honest, but the immediate deflection to movement suggests the no is not the whole answer. Dag names the ambiguity at the end: "Dag could not tell whether Mikael had understood or whether he was being polite." MEANING_DETERMINACY: MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE — the
thank-you is itself ambiguous.

[S318] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: SIBLING | ESTABLISHED

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

□BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A sibling who has been asked to help with something difficult would be expected to either help or explain why they cannot.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Lukas

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Petra

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: saying yes and then arriving with more than was asked for

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PRACTICAL_CARE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [PROXY]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: CRISIS

Petra had asked him to come and help her sort through their mother's things. He arrived with food, with the specific tea their mother had always made, with a box of the photographs he had already taken from the house on an earlier visit. He had not been asked for any of it. He had brought it anyway.

TRIGGER: Petra has asked Lukas to come and help her sort through their mother's belongings.

RESPONSE: He arrives with food, their mother's tea, and photographs he had already taken.

NOTE: The specific tea is the behavioral unit — he has brought the tea their mother always made.

The behavioral expression of the attention: he has been thinking about what this day would need, and the tea is the proxy for the mother's presence in the absence of the mother. The photographs he had already taken are the behavioral evidence of the same attention:

he has been preparing for this day before she asked.

[S319] AMBIGUOUS

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: MARITAL | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A spouse who has been watching their partner sleep would be expected to go back to sleep or get up.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Lars

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Britta

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: reaching out and then stopping with his hand an inch from her shoulder

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: OMISSION

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [INVOLUNTARY]

OBSERVER: NONE

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: MEDIUM

MEANING_DETERMINACY: UNRESOLVED

STRUCTURE: ROUTINE

He woke at three and lay watching her sleep. He reached out his hand toward her shoulder and stopped, his hand an inch from her. He did not touch her. He lay there with his hand extended, not touching, for a long time. He did not know, afterward, whether he had stopped because he did not want to wake her or because he was afraid of what she would say if she woke.

TRIGGER: Lars has woken in the night and found himself reaching toward Britta.

RESPONSE: He reaches out and stops an inch from her shoulder. He does not touch her.

NOTE: The stopping an inch from her shoulder is the behavioral unit. The narrator names the ambiguity directly: "He did not know, afterward, whether he had stopped because he did not want to wake her or because he was afraid of what she would say if she woke."

MEANING_DETERMINACY:

UNRESOLVED — the text deliberately withholds resolution, and the character himself cannot resolve it.

[S320] NAMED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: FRIENDSHIP | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A friend who has been told their closest friend is moving away permanently would be expected to respond with words.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Nora

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Sigrid

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: asking practical questions about the move

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: DEFLECTION

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [PRACTICAL_CARE]

OBSERVER: SELF_AWARE

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: CONTRADICTORY

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: DEATH

"When do you leave?" Nora asked. Sigrid told her: "And the apartment?" Sigrid told her: "And the job starts when?" Nora wrote it all down. She was going to miss her in a way that had no language yet, and the questions were the only form the missing had taken so far, and she wrote down the answers because writing them down was the only way she knew to hold on to something that was already leaving.

TRIGGER: Sigrid has just told Nora she is moving to another country permanently.

RESPONSE: Nora asks practical questions about the move and writes down the answers.

NOTE: The narrator names the interior state directly: "She was going to miss her in a way that had no language yet, and the questions were the only form the missing had taken so far, and she wrote down the answers beca

SUB-BATCH 2 — S321–S328 (Synthetic, Gidlund Working-Class Register)

SYNTHETIC EXTRACTIONS — BATCH D, SUB-BATCH 2

Entries: S321–S328

Register: Gidlund-inspired (working-class domestic, compressed, object-anchored)

Corrections from sub-batch 1: SIBLING reduced, no STRANGER/PRACTICAL_CARE,

ADVERSARIAL and INSTITUTIONAL added, UNRESOLVED maintained

Source file: batch_D_sub2-4.pdf (canonical — S323 NOTE corrected)

[S321] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: MARITAL | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A spouse who has been working the same shift for twenty years would be expected to come home at the same time.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: TEXTUAL

FOCAL_ACTOR: the wife

FOCAL_RESPONDER: the husband

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: having his dinner on the table at the exact minute he walks in, every day for twenty years

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: ACCUMULATION

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [PRACTICAL_CARE]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: ROUTINE

He came home at twenty past five. The dinner was on the table. It had been on the table at twenty past five every working day for twenty years. He hung up his jacket and sat down. She sat across from him. They ate. He said the food was good. She said it was the same as always.

TRIGGER: The husband has come home from the factory at his usual time.

RESPONSE: The dinner is on the table at the exact minute he arrives, as it has been every day for twenty years.

NOTE: The timing is the behavioral unit — not the food, but the timing.

Twenty years of dinners at twenty past five is the behavioral measure of the marriage: she has organized her day around his arrival for twenty years without naming it as such. "It was the same as always" is the behavioral completion: she does not accept the compliment as a compliment, because the constancy is not something she thinks of as an achievement. It is simply what she does.

[S322] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: PARENTAL | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=ACTOR | degree=MODERATE |
basis=PARENTAL_AUTHORITY

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A father who has been told his son has lost his job would be expected to respond with words.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: the father

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Markku

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: going to the shed and coming back with a bag of tools

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PRACTICAL_CARE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [DISPLACEMENT]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: CRISIS

Markku told him. His father said nothing. He went out to the shed. He came back with a bag of tools and set it on the table. "The bathroom tap has been dripping," he said. "I thought we could fix it." They fixed the tap. It took two hours. They did not talk about the job.

TRIGGER: Markku has just told his father he has been laid off from the factory where he has worked for eight years.

RESPONSE: The father goes to the shed and comes back with tools. They fix the bathroom tap for two hours without talking about the job.

NOTE: The bag of tools is the behavioral unit — he goes to the shed and comes back with something to do. The tap has been dripping; it is the available thing. The two hours of fixing is the behavioral expression of the care: he cannot fix the job, but he can fix the tap, and the fixing is the form the care takes. They do not talk about the job: the behavioral completion. The tap is fixed. The job is not mentioned. Both things are true.

[S323] AMBIGUOUS

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: ADVERSARIAL | DISTANT

POWER: holder=RESPONDER | degree=STRONG | basis=EMPLOYMENT

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: SEMI_PUBLIC

LOCATION: WORKPLACE

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A supervisor who has been asked a direct question by an employee would be expected to answer it.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Supervisor Korhonen

FOCAL_RESPONDER: the worker

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: answering the question and then writing something in his notebook

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PERFORMANCE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [OMISSION]

OBSERVER: UNKNOWN

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: MEDIUM

MEANING_DETERMINACY: UNRESOLVED

STRUCTURE: ESCALATION

The worker asked whether the overtime would be paid at the new rate or the old one. Korhonen said the new rate. He wrote something in his notebook. The worker could not see what he wrote. He did not know whether Korhonen was recording the question, or recording the answer, or writing something unrelated.

TRIGGER: The worker has asked Supervisor Korhonen about the overtime rate for the upcoming weekend shift.

RESPONSE: Korhonen answers and writes something in his notebook.

NOTE: The writing in the notebook is the behavioral unit — he answers the question and immediately writes something. The worker cannot see what he writes. Whether Korhonen is documenting the question (which would mean the question is being tracked), or documenting the answer (which would mean the commitment is being recorded), or writing something entirely unrelated, is not resolvable from the text. The three readings are equally supported and the narrator withholds resolution.

MEANING_DETERMINACY: UNRESOLVED — the worker's uncertainty is the behavioral evidence that the signal is genuinely ambiguous, not merely underdetermined.

[S324] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: FRIENDSHIP | ESTABLISHED

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: Two friends who have been meeting every Friday for years would be expected to maintain their usual routine.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: TEXTUAL

FOCAL_ACTOR: Bertil

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Gunnar

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: bringing the same brand of beer he has always brought, the week after Gunnar's wife's funeral

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: ACCUMULATION

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [PRACTICAL_CARE]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: AFTERMATH

Bertil came on Friday as he always did. He brought the same beer he always brought — the cheap kind from the supermarket, the kind they had always drunk. He did not bring anything special. He sat down in the same chair. They watched the same program. He left at the same time.

TRIGGER: Gunnar's wife was buried on Tuesday. It is now Friday. Bertil has come as he always does.

RESPONSE: Bertil brings the same cheap beer, sits in the same chair, watches the same program, leaves at the same time.

NOTE: The same beer is the behavioral unit — he does not bring anything special, does not change anything, does not treat the Friday differently. The behavioral expression of the friendship: the sameness is the care. He is not pretending nothing has happened; he is providing the one thing that has not changed. The same chair, the same program, the same time of leaving: the accumulation of the unchanged is the behavioral measure of what he is offering.

[S325] NAMED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: MARITAL | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A spouse who has been watching their partner pack to leave would be expected to say something.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Leena

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Markku

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: folding his shirts while he packs

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PRACTICAL_CARE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [DISPLACEMENT]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: ALIGNED

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: DEPARTURE

NOTE (structural flag): DEPARTURE is not in the NAMED target list (DEATH/REVERSAL/CONFESSION/

CRISIS). Entry is strong and retained — correct in sub-batch 3.

She folded his shirts while he packed. He had not asked her to. She folded them the way she had always folded them — the sleeves in first, then the body, then in thirds. She was not trying to stop him. She was not trying to say anything. She was doing the only thing she still knew how to do for him, and she did it carefully, because careful was the only way she knew.

TRIGGER: Markku is packing to leave the marriage. Leena is in the room.

RESPONSE: She folds his shirts while he packs, without being asked.

NOTE: The narrator names the interior state directly: "She was not trying to stop him. She was not trying to say anything. She was doing the only thing she still knew how to do for him, and she did it carefully, because careful was the only way she knew." NAMED at DEPARTURE: the naming is necessary because the behavioral act (folding shirts) could read as passive acceptance, or as a last attempt to hold on, or as spite. The narrator specifies the precise quality: not any of those things, but the specific act of a person who has run out of everything except the habit of care.

[S326] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: INSTITUTIONAL | DISTANT

POWER: holder=RESPONDER | degree=STRONG | basis=INSTITUTIONAL_AUTHORITY

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PUBLIC

LOCATION: INSTITUTIONAL

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A person who has been denied a benefit they applied for would be expected to respond to the decision.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: the woman

FOCAL_RESPONDER: the official

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: putting the letter back in the envelope and putting the envelope in her bag

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: WITHDRAWAL

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [SILENCE]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: CRISIS

The official read the decision aloud. The woman listened. When he finished she took the letter from him, folded it, put it back in the envelope, and put the envelope in her bag. She did not say anything. She stood up. She said thank you. She left.

TRIGGER: The official has just read aloud the decision denying the woman's application for housing assistance.

RESPONSE: She folds the letter, puts it in her bag, says thank you, and leaves without saying anything else.

NOTE: The folding of the letter is the behavioral unit — she takes it, folds it, puts it away. The behavioral expression of the decision not to argue, not to ask questions, not to show what the decision costs: she puts it in her bag and says thank you. The "thank you" is the behavioral completion of the same decision: she performs the social form even now. The leaving is the behavioral expression of the dignity that is the only thing the decision cannot take.

[S327] AMBIGUOUS

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: SIBLING | ESTABLISHED

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A sibling who has been asked whether they are coming to the family gathering would be expected to answer.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Oskar

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Lena

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: saying he will try and then not calling back

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: OMISSION

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [ACCUMULATION]

OBSERVER: UNKNOWN

SELF_REPORT: PRESENT

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: PARTIAL

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: MEDIUM

MEANING_DETERMINACY: MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE

STRUCTURE: ESCALATION

NOTE: MECHANISM_SOURCE: UNMAPPED_RELATIONSHIP (SIBLING has no matrix row — using SIBLING matrix:

SILENCE, OMISSION, DISPLACEMENT, PRACTICAL_CARE)

"Are you coming?" Lena asked. "I'll try," Oskar said. He did not call back. He had said he would try at Christmas too, and at midsummer, and at their mother's birthday. He had not come to any of them. Lena did not know whether he was avoiding the family or avoiding something specific that would be at the gathering.

TRIGGER: Lena has asked Oskar whether he is coming to the family gathering next weekend.

RESPONSE: He says he will try and does not call back.

NOTE: The not-calling-back is the behavioral unit — he has said he will try at every family gathering for a year; he has not come to any of them. SELF_REPORT: PRESENT ("I'll try").

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: PARTIAL — the "I'll try" is honest in that he may genuinely intend to try, but the pattern of not coming suggests the trying is not the point. Lena names the ambiguity directly:

"She did not know whether he was avoiding the family or avoiding something specific that would be at the gathering." MEANING_DETERMINACY: MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE.

[S328] NAMED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: PARENTAL | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=ACTOR | degree=MODERATE |
basis=PARENTAL_AUTHORITY

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A mother who has been watching her adult daughter leave for the last time would be expected to say goodbye.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: the mother

FOCAL_RESPONDER: N/A (daughter has left)

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: washing the cup her daughter used and putting it back in the exact place it always was

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PRACTICAL_CARE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [ACCUMULATION]

OBSERVER: NONE

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: ALIGNED

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: DEPARTURE

NOTE (structural flag): DEPARTURE is not in the NAMED target list (DEATH/REVERSAL/CONFESSION/

CRISIS). Entry is strong and retained — correct in sub-batch 3.

After the car had gone she washed the cup her daughter had used and put it back in the exact place it always was — third from the left on the second shelf, where it had been since the daughter was seven years old. She was not keeping it for her. She was not saving it. She was putting it back because putting it back was the only form the love had left.

TRIGGER: The mother's daughter has just driven away after a final visit before moving abroad permanently.

RESPONSE: The mother washes the cup and puts it back in its exact place.

NOTE: The narrator names the interior state directly: "She was not keeping it for her. She was not saving it. She was putting it back because putting it back was the only form the love had left."

NAMED at DEPARTURE: the naming is necessary because the behavioral act (washing a cup, putting it back) is entirely ordinary and would carry no weight without the interior state named. The specificity — third from the left on the second shelf, since the daughter was seven — is the behavioral precision that makes the naming land. The cup has been in that place for the daughter's entire life; it goes back there now.

SUB-BATCH 2 TALLY (S321–S328)

Tag Count %
---- ----- ---
IMPLIED 4 50%
NAMED 2 25%
AMBIGUOUS 2 25%

Relationship Count
--- ---
MARITAL 2
PARENTAL 2
FRIENDSHIP 1
ADVERSARIAL 1
INSTITUTIONAL 1
SIBLING 1

Meaning Determinacy Count
--- ---
CLEAR 5
MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE 2
UNRESOLVED 1

NAMED structural positions: DEPARTURE x2 — both off-target per sampler spec

(DEATH/REVERSAL/CONFESSION/CRISIS only). Entries retained; correct in sub-batch 3.

GIDLUND REGISTER NOTES

The Gidlund register produces a specific subtype: behavioral units anchored in domestic objects with long histories (the cup in its place since the daughter was seven; the same cheap beer; the dinner at twenty past five). The objects carry the weight of the relationship's duration. The behavioral communication is not about the object itself but about the accumulated time the object represents.

This is distinct from the PROXY mechanism (where an object stands in for a person) — it is closer to ACCUMULATION + PRACTICAL_CARE, where the repetition of the act over time is the behavioral unit, not the act itself.

Productive for sub-batch 3: more object-anchored entries where the behavioral unit is the duration of the habit rather than the single instance.

EXHAUSTED SHAPES (do not reuse in sub-batch 3):

- window shape (5+ uses across B revised and D sub-1)
- cupboard reorganizing (3+ uses)
- "are you all right / yes / goes to window" (4+ uses in B revised)
- dinner at exact time (S321 — one use, monitor)
- same beer on Friday (S324 — one use, monitor)

SUB-BATCH 2 CONTINUED — S329–S336 (Synthetic, Illness/ Parental Register)

SYNTHETIC EXTRACTIONS — BATCH D, GIDLUND-INSPIRED

Entries: S321–S328

Sampler version: v2

Note: Entries inspired by structural patterns in Swedish illness memoir register.

All characters, situations, and passages are original synthetic constructions.

[S329] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: PARENTAL | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=ACTOR | degree=MODERATE |
basis=PARENTAL_AUTHORITY

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: SEMI_PUBLIC

LOCATION: INSTITUTIONAL

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A father who has just sat through his son's medical consultation

would be expected to speak — to ask questions, to reassure, to react.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: the father

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Mattias

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: throwing away his untouched coffee on the way out

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: DISPLACEMENT

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [SILENCE]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: CRISIS

The consultation was over. They stood. His father picked up the paper cup he had been given when they arrived and had not touched. On the way out he dropped it in the bin by the door. They walked to the car without speaking. His father had dressed carefully that morning — the good coat, the shoes he kept for occasions.

TRIGGER: Mattias and his father have just been told the treatment has not worked as hoped.

The doctor has outlined the next steps. The father has sat through the entire consultation without speaking.

RESPONSE: He throws away the untouched coffee on the way out. He says nothing.

NOTE: The untouched coffee is the behavioral unit — he was given it when they arrived and has held it through the entire consultation without drinking it. The throwing away is the only action he takes. The good coat and the careful shoes are the behavioral evidence of what the morning meant to him before it became what it became. Mattias does not name what his father is feeling; the narrator does not name it either.

CORRECTION: BASELINE_SUPPORT should read SOCIAL_CONVENTION (not TEXTUAL — no prior textual establishment of this father's behavior at consultations).

[S330] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: PARENTAL | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: OUTDOOR

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A father who finds his son alone on a road the morning before surgery would be expected to ask what he is doing there, or to say something about what is coming.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: the father

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Erik

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: putting his arm around Erik and walking home slowly without speaking

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PRACTICAL_CARE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [SILENCE]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: DEPARTURE

He had come around the bend in the road and there was his father, walking toward him.
His father raised one hand. When they reached each other his father put his arm around him and they turned and walked back toward the house. Slowly. His father did not ask what he had been doing out here. They walked the whole way without speaking. At the gate his mother was standing with her coat on, as if she had been about to come looking.

TRIGGER: Erik has left the house alone before dawn, the morning of his surgery. His father has woken and followed him.

RESPONSE: The father puts his arm around him and walks him home without asking where he has been or why he left.

NOTE: The arm around the shoulder is the behavioral unit — the father does not ask, does not explain, does not prepare Erik for what is coming. He simply walks beside him with his arm around him. The slowness of the walking is the behavioral expression of the wish that the road were longer. The mother at the gate is the behavioral evidence that both parents have been awake.

[S331] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: PARENTAL | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: Children lying awake in the next room would be expected to feel anxious about what is happening.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: TEXTUAL

FOCAL_ACTOR: the parents [NOTE: plural focal actor — intentional; the behavioral unit is collective and cannot be attributed to one parent without distorting it]

FOCAL_RESPONDER: the children

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: moving around in the next room, doing ordinary things

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: ATMOSPHERIC

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [PRACTICAL_CARE]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: CRISIS

They lay under their covers and listened. Their parents were in the kitchen — they could hear the low sound of movement, the tap running briefly, a drawer closing. Nothing was wrong with the sounds. They were the same sounds as always. After a while the light under the door went out. They could sleep now.

TRIGGER: The children are lying awake after an evening in which something serious has been discussed by the adults, though not in front of them.

RESPONSE: The parents move around in the kitchen doing ordinary things. The sounds are normal. The children relax and sleep.

NOTE: The ordinary sounds are the behavioral unit — the tap, the drawer, the light going out in the right order. The parents are not performing calm for the children; they are simply present and moving, which is the same thing. The children's ability to sleep is the behavioral evidence that the signal has been received and read correctly. The narrator does not name what the parents are feeling while they move around the kitchen.

[S332] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: FRIENDSHIP | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A friend visiting before a difficult medical procedure would be expected to ask how the person is feeling, or to offer words of encouragement.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Sara

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Jonas

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: arriving with a specific thing she knows he needs, without explaining why

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PRACTICAL_CARE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [PROXY]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH
MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR
STRUCTURE: DEPARTURE

*She came through the snow with her headphones around her neck.
She had brought the specific tea he always drank when he was ill — not the kind he kept in the cupboard,
but the one from the shop on Hornsgatan that he had mentioned once, months ago. She had not asked if he wanted it. She set it on the table and took off her coat.*

TRIGGER: Jonas has a procedure scheduled for the following morning.
Sara has come to spend the evening with him.

RESPONSE: She arrives with the specific tea he mentioned once months ago. She does not explain why she brought it or how she remembered.

NOTE: The specific tea is the behavioral unit — not the generic kind but the one from the specific shop, mentioned once in passing months ago. The behavioral expression of the attention: she has been listening, and the tea is the proof of it. She does not explain

the tea or draw attention to it; she sets it on the table and takes off her coat. The not-explaining is the behavioral completion of the same care: it requires no acknowledgment.

[S333] AMBIGUOUS

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: PARENTAL | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=ACTOR | degree=MODERATE |
basis=PARENTAL_AUTHORITY
SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE
LOCATION: OUTDOOR
BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A parent watching their adult child from a distance would be expected to call out or approach.
BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION
FOCAL_ACTOR: the mother
FOCAL_RESPONDER: Lena
FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: watching from near the apple tree without approaching, then going back inside
PRIMARY_MECHANISM: WITHDRAWAL
SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [ATMOSPHERIC]
OBSERVER: UNKNOWN
SELF_REPORT: ABSENT
ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: MEDIUM
MEANING_DETERMINACY: UNRESOLVED
STRUCTURE: CRISIS

She had been sitting in the garden for some time when she saw her mother on the other side, near the old apple tree. Her mother was watching her. When Lena looked up her mother did not wave or move toward her. She stood there for a moment longer, then turned and went back inside. Lena did not know whether her mother had come out intending to go to her and then decided not to interrupt, or whether she had simply been standing there, or whether she had come out, seen what Lena needed, and made the decision to leave without Lena ever knowing it was a decision.

TRIGGER: Lena is sitting alone in the garden after receiving difficult news. Her mother is in the house.

RESPONSE: The mother watches from near the apple tree without approaching or speaking, then goes back inside.

NOTE: The watching without approaching is the behavioral unit. Three readings are equally supported: (1) the mother came out intending to go to Lena and decided not to interrupt; (2) she was in the garden for another reason and happened to look; (3) she came out, read what Lena needed, and made the deliberate decision to leave — a decision Lena will never know was made. Lena does not know which: the behavioral evidence that the signal is genuinely unresolved. MEANING_DETERMINACY: UNRESOLVED — the text deliberately withholds resolution, and the third reading (the most generous to the mother) is structurally unavailable to Lena even if it is true.

[S334] NAMED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: PARENTAL | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: OUTDOOR

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A parent sitting with their adult child who is ill would be expected to speak — to offer comfort, to ask questions, to fill the silence.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: the father

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Mikael

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: sitting beside him on the step and watching the garden without speaking

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PRACTICAL_CARE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [SILENCE]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: ALIGNED

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: DEATH

His father sat down beside him on the step. They watched his parents' garden together — the apple trees his father had planted the year Mikael was born, the beds his mother kept. His father did not speak. He had understood, sitting down, that there was nothing to say that would be adequate, and that his presence was the only thing he had left to give, and that it was enough.

TRIGGER: Mikael has just told his father that the illness is terminal. They are sitting on the step outside the house.

RESPONSE: The father sits beside him and watches the garden without speaking.

NOTE: The narrator names the interior state directly: "He had understood, sitting down, that there was nothing to say that would be adequate, and that his presence was the only thing he had left to give, and that it was enough." NAMED at DEATH: the naming is necessary because the behavioral act (sitting in silence) would otherwise read as inability to respond rather than the specific quality of the decision to be present without words. The apple trees planted the year Mikael was born are the behavioral context that makes the silence legible.

[S335] IMPLIED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: FRIENDSHIP | ESTABLISHED

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A person who has withdrawn from contact during illness would be expected, when asked about it, to explain or apologize.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: David

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Nora

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: saying only "I know" and not explaining further

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: OMISSION

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [WITHDRAWAL]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: CONFESSION

"You disappeared," Nora said. "I know," David said. He did not explain. He did not apologize. He looked at his hands for a moment. She had known him for eleven years and she understood that the not-explaining was itself the explanation: he had needed to make himself small, to reduce the surface area of his life, and she had been part of what he had reduced. He knew she understood this. That was why he did not apologize.

TRIGGER: Nora has told David that he disappeared from her life during the worst months of his illness, without explanation.

RESPONSE: He says "I know" and does not explain or apologize.

NOTE: The "I know" without explanation is the behavioral unit — he does not defend himself, does not offer reasons, does not ask forgiveness. The narrator names Nora's reading of the omission — "she understood that the not-explaining was itself the explanation" — which is the narrator attributing an interpretation to the observer, not naming David's interior state directly. This is IMPLIED with OBSERVER: CORRECT: the behavioral signal is legible, and the narrator confirms the observer's reading rather than supplanting it. The looking at his hands is the only physical signal — the body's acknowledgment of what the words are not saying.

[S336] NAMED

SOURCE: SYNTHETIC

RELATIONSHIP: PARENTAL | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: OUTDOOR

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A parent watching their child prepare to leave for a long period would be expected to say something significant — advice, love, a farewell.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: the father

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Anders

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: continuing to work in the garden without looking up as Anders leaves

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: DISPLACEMENT

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [OMISSION]

OBSERVER: SELF_AWARE
SELF_REPORT: ABSENT
SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: CONTRADICTORY
ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH
MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR
STRUCTURE: DEPARTURE

His father was working in the garden when Anders came out with his bag. He said he was going. His father said good, have a safe trip, and kept working. He did not look up. He was not indifferent. He was a man who had learned, over seventy years, that the only way to let someone go was to be doing something with your hands when they left, so that the leaving happened at the edge of your vision rather than at the center of it.

TRIGGER: Anders is leaving after a long visit home, during which it has become clear that his father's health is declining.

RESPONSE: The father keeps working in the garden without looking up as Anders leaves.

NOTE: The narrator names the interior state directly: "He was not indifferent. He was a man who had learned, over seventy years, that the only way to let someone go was to be doing something with your hands when they left, so that the leaving happened at the edge of your vision rather than at the center of it." NAMED at DEPARTURE: the naming is necessary because the behavioral act (not looking up) would read as indifference without the narrator's intervention. SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: CONTRADICTORY — the named interior state

(the specific learned strategy for grief) contradicts the behavioral surface (apparent inattention). This is the most precise use of NAMED in the synthetic corpus: not naming a feeling but naming the mechanism by which a feeling is managed — the interior logic of the displacement itself.

REAL CORPUS — H001–H008 (Kent Haruf: Plainsong + Our Souls at Night)

REAL CORPUS EXTRACTIONS — KENT HARUF

Sources: Plainsong (2000) and Our Souls at Night (2015)

Entries: H001–H008

Note: Real corpus entries. Passages quoted directly from source text.

[H001] IMPLIED

SOURCE: Plainsong — Kent Haruf

RELATIONSHIP: STRANGER | DISTANT

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: Two old bachelor ranchers who have agreed to take in a pregnant teenage girl would be expected to say something about the arrangement — to explain the house, to acknowledge the situation, to speak about what they are doing.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: TEXTUAL

FOCAL_ACTOR: Harold and Raymond McPherson

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Victoria Roubideaux

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: having cleaned the house before she arrived, without mentioning it

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PRACTICAL_CARE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [SILENCE]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: ARRIVAL

Inside, it was apparent at once that the McPheron brothers had made an effort.

The sink was empty of dishes, the table was scrubbed clean, the kitchen chairs were free of the mechanics' rags and the pieces of machinery they had held the day before, and the floor looked as hard-swept as if an immigrant woman had used her broom on it.

TRIGGER: Victoria Roubideaux, a pregnant seventeen-year-old with nowhere to go, has just arrived at the McPheron brothers' ranch for the first time. The brothers have never had a woman living in the house.

RESPONSE: The house has been cleaned. Neither brother mentions it. Harold shows her around, talking too much. Raymond says almost nothing.

NOTE: The cleaned house is the behavioral unit — the sunbleached outlines of books and magazines still visible on the table surface are the evidence of how recently it was done. Neither brother says anything about the cleaning. Harold talks about the sink and the gas range and then stops himself: "I reckon all that'd be more or less obvious to anybody. It don't require me to tell you." The cleaning is the communication; the not-mentioning is the behavioral completion of it. Two men who have lived alone for decades have prepared the house for a stranger they have agreed to shelter, and the preparation is the only statement they make about what that means to them.

[H002] IMPLIED

SOURCE: Plainsong — Kent Haruf

RELATIONSHIP: STRANGER | DISTANT

POWER: holder=ACTOR | degree=SLIGHT | basis=AGE

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A person showing a stranger to their bathroom would not be expected to have made any special preparation for it.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Harold and Raymond McPheron

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Victoria Roubideaux

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: having placed a new pink towel on the drying rod before she arrived

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PROXY

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [PRACTICAL_CARE]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: ARRIVAL

On the shelves above the sink were various half-used jars of liniment and salve and Cornhuskers handbalm, and tubes of back-rub and sore-muscle ointment, and there was also tooth powder and denture adhesive and shaving equipment, and hanging over one of the drying rods next to the bathtub, together with two old towels, was a single fresh new pink towel that still had the store tag stapled to it.

TRIGGER: Victoria has been shown to her bedroom and has stepped into the bathroom alone for the first time.

RESPONSE: She finds two old towels and one new pink towel with the store tag still on it. Neither brother has mentioned it.

NOTE: The store tag is the behavioral unit — it confirms the towel was bought for her arrival, not already owned. The two old towels are the brothers' own; the pink one is hers. Neither brother mentions it, draws attention to it, or explains it.

It is simply there. The pink color against the old liniment jars and denture adhesive is the full measure of the effort: two old men who have never thought about towel color have thought about towel color. The not-mentioning is the behavioral completion: the care requires no acknowledgment.

[H003] NAMED

SOURCE: Plainsong — Kent Haruf

RELATIONSHIP: STRANGER | DISTANT

POWER: holder=ACTOR | degree=MODERATE | basis=AGE

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: An old woman who has been talking about herself to two boys collecting for the newspaper would be expected to continue talking about herself, or to pay them and let them go.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: TEXTUAL

FOCAL_ACTOR: Iva Stearns

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Ike and Bobby

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: stopping and saying she is sorry about their mother

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PRACTICAL_CARE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [SILENCE]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

SIGNAL_ALIGNMENT: ALIGNED

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: REVERSAL

I'm very sorry, she said finally. I'm very sorry to hear about your mother.

Here I was, talking about myself. You must be lonely.

They didn't know how to say anything about that.

TRIGGER: Bobby has just told the old woman that their mother moved out of the house a few weeks ago. Ike told him to shut up. The old woman has just finished telling them her own family is all gone or dead.

RESPONSE: She stops. She says she is sorry. She says "here I was, talking about myself." She says they must be lonely. The boys don't know how to say anything about that.

NOTE: The narrator names the interior state through the old woman's words — "I'm very sorry" and "you must be lonely" are the narrator's confirmation of her recognition, not a character's self-report. The reversal is structural: she has been performing the role of the difficult old woman who makes the boys talk, and the moment Bobby tells her about their mother she drops it entirely.

"Here I was, talking about myself" is the behavioral evidence of the reversal — she names what she was doing and stops doing it. The boys' silence — "they didn't know how to say anything about that" — is the behavioral completion: the care has been received but cannot be answered.

[H004] IMPLIED

SOURCE: Plainsong — Kent Haruf

RELATIONSHIP: PARENTAL | INTIMATE

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: OUTDOOR

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A father asked why two old men never married would be expected to offer a practical explanation, or to deflect the question.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Bobby

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Tom Guthrie (father)

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: looking out the window and saying quietly "I guess they didn't want to leave each other"

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: OMISSION

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [ATMOSPHERIC]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: ROUTINE

Bobby looked out the window. He said, I guess they didn't want to leave each other.
Guthrie glanced at him. Maybe so, he said. Maybe that's what happened, son.

TRIGGER: Ike has asked their father why Harold and Raymond McPherson never got married and had a family like everybody else. The father has said he doesn't know, that people don't sometimes, that he guesses they never found the right girl.

RESPONSE: Bobby looks out the window and says quietly that he guesses they didn't want to leave each other. The father glances at him.

NOTE: The looking out the window is the behavioral unit — Bobby turns away before speaking. What he says is not an answer to the question asked (why didn't they marry) but an answer to a different question (what held them together).

The

father's glance is the behavioral evidence that he has heard something more than a child's observation. "Maybe so. Maybe that's what happened, son" — the "son" is the behavioral signal of the recognition: the father is speaking to the child who just said something true about love.

[H005] IMPLIED

SOURCE: Our Souls at Night — Kent Haruf

RELATIONSHIP: ROMANTIC | FORMING

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: DOMESTIC

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A man who has agreed to spend the night at a neighbor's house for the first time would be expected to simply arrive.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Louis Waters

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Addie Moore

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: getting a haircut and shave, eating lightly, scrubbing himself, trimming his nails, walking through the dark alley with his pajamas in a paper sack

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: DISPLACEMENT

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [PERFORMANCE]

OBSERVER: PARTIAL

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: OPENING

The next day Louis went to the barber on Main Street and had his hair cut short and neat, a kind of buzz cut, and asked the barber if he still shaved people and the barber said he did, so he got a shave too. Then he went home and called Addie and said, I'd like to come over tonight if that's still all right. He ate a light supper, just a sandwich and a glass of milk, he didn't want to feel heavy and laden in her bed, and then he took a long hot shower and scrubbed himself thoroughly. He trimmed his fingernails and toenails and at dark he went out the back door and walked up the back alley carrying a paper sack with his pajamas and toothbrush inside.

TRIGGER: Addie Moore has asked Louis Waters to come and sleep in her bed at night — not for sex, but for company and conversation. He has said he will think about it. He has decided to come.

RESPONSE: He gets a haircut and a shave. He eats lightly so he won't feel heavy in her bed. He scrubs himself thoroughly. He trims his fingernails and toenails.

He walks through the dark alley so the neighbors won't see him.

NOTE: The preparation is the behavioral unit — none of it is mentioned to Addie, none of it is required by the arrangement. The haircut, the shave, the light supper, the scrubbing, the trimmed nails: each is the behavioral expression of what the evening means to him, carried out in private before he arrives. He goes through the alley to avoid being seen, which Addie immediately corrects: "The alley makes it seem we're doing something wrong." He has been performing respectability for an audience that isn't there. The paper sack with the pajamas is the behavioral object that carries the whole weight of the decision.

[H006] IMPLIED

SOURCE: Our Souls at Night — Kent Haruf

RELATIONSHIP: ROMANTIC | FORMING

POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A

SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE

LOCATION: INSTITUTIONAL

BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A woman who has been told by a man that he is sick and won't be coming over would be expected to wait to hear from him again.

BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION

FOCAL_ACTOR: Addie Moore

FOCAL_RESPONDER: Louis Waters

FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: appearing in the chair beside his hospital bed when he wakes

PRIMARY_MECHANISM: PRACTICAL_CARE

SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [SILENCE]

OBSERVER: CORRECT

SELF_REPORT: ABSENT

ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: CRISIS

They gave him antibiotics and he slept most of the afternoon and again was awake much of the night. In the morning he felt better and they told him he'd probably be released the next day. He ate breakfast and lunch and took a short nap and when he woke up around three she was sitting in the chair beside his bed. He looked at her. You weren't kidding, she said. Did you think I was? I thought you were just saying you were sick. That you decided you didn't want to be with me at night.

TRIGGER: Louis called Addie to say he was sick and wouldn't be coming. She hung up. He was admitted to hospital with a urinary tract infection. He has not called her since.

RESPONSE: She finds out from a neighbor that he is in hospital. She comes. She is sitting in the chair beside his bed when he wakes from his nap.

NOTE: The sitting in the chair is the behavioral unit — she has not been called, has not been asked to come, has not been told which hospital or which room. She found out from a neighbor and came anyway. "You weren't kidding" is the behavioral evidence of what she had been thinking: she had believed he was withdrawing. The coming to the hospital is the answer to that belief, and it is also the statement of what she is willing to do. She does not explain why she came. She simply says "you weren't kidding."

[H007] IMPLIED

SOURCE: Our Souls at Night — Kent Haruf
RELATIONSHIP: ROMANTIC | INTIMATE
POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A
SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: PRIVATE
LOCATION: DOMESTIC
BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A man spending his last night with a woman before a forced separation would be expected to stay until morning.
BASELINE_SUPPORT: TEXTUAL
FOCAL_ACTOR: Louis Waters
FOCAL_RESPONDER: Addie Moore
FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: getting up at 4am, dressing, putting his pajamas in the paper bag, and leaving while it is still dark
PRIMARY_MECHANISM: DISPLACEMENT
SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [WITHDRAWAL]
OBSERVER: CORRECT
SELF_REPORT: ABSENT
ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH

MEANING_DETERMINACY: CLEAR

STRUCTURE: DEPARTURE

*At four he got up again and dressed and put his pajamas and toothbrush in the paper bag.
Are you leaving?
I thought I would.
It's still night for a few more hours.
I can't see any point in putting this off.
She started to weep again.
He walked downstairs and went home past the old trees and the houses all dark and strange at this hour. The sky was still dark and nothing was moving. No cars in the streets. In his own house, he lay in bed watching the east window for the first sign of daylight.*

TRIGGER: This is Louis and Addie's last night together. Addie's son has forced the arrangement to end. They have been lying awake. Addie has been crying.

RESPONSE: Louis gets up at 4am and puts his pajamas in the paper bag and leaves while it is still dark.

NOTE: The paper bag with the pajamas is the behavioral unit — it is the same object from the first night, when he walked through the dark alley carrying it for the first time. Now he puts the pajamas back in it and leaves. "I can't see any point in putting this off" is the behavioral expression of the same quality that brought him through the alley on the first night: a directness about what things mean. He walks home past the dark houses and lies in bed watching the east window. The watching for daylight is the behavioral completion: he is doing the same thing he did before Addie — lying awake alone, waiting for the night to end.

[H008] AMBIGUOUS

SOURCE: Our Souls at Night — Kent Haruf
RELATIONSHIP: ROMANTIC | INTIMATE
POWER: holder=SYMMETRIC | degree=NONE | basis=N/A
SOCIAL_VISIBILITY: SEMI_PUBLIC
LOCATION: OUTDOOR
BASELINE_EXPECTATION: A woman who sees a man she has separated from walking past her house at night would be expected to either ignore him or signal to him.
BASELINE_SUPPORT: SOCIAL_CONVENTION
FOCAL_ACTOR: Addie Moore
FOCAL_RESPONDER: Louis Waters
FOCAL_BEHAVIOR: appearing at the window and making no gesture as he looks up
PRIMARY_MECHANISM: ATMOSPHERIC
SECONDARY_MECHANISMS: [OMISSION]
OBSERVER: UNKNOWN
SELF_REPORT: ABSENT
ANNOTATION_CONFIDENCE: HIGH
MEANING_DETERMINACY: MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE
STRUCTURE: AFTERMATH

As the weather held that fall Louis often walked out at night past her house and looked at the light shining upstairs in her bedroom, her bedside lamp that he knew and the room with its big bed and dark wooden dresser and the bathroom located down the hall, and remembered everything about the room and the nights lying in the dark talking and the closeness of it all. Then one night he noticed her face appear at the window and he stopped, she made no gesture nor any sign that she was looking at him. But when he was home again she called him on the phone. You can't do that anymore.

TRIGGER: Louis and Addie have been separated for some time. Louis has been walking past her house at night and looking at her light.

RESPONSE: One night her face appears at the window. She makes no gesture. When he is home she calls and tells him he can't do that anymore.

NOTE: The face at the window making no gesture is the behavioral unit. Whether she appeared at the window by chance and happened to see him, or whether she has known he was walking past and came to the window deliberately on this night, is MULTIPLE_PLAUSIBLE. The call that follows — "you can't do that anymore" — is the behavioral evidence that she has seen him and that it has cost her something. But whether the no-gesture was deliberate withholding or simply the shock of seeing him is not resolved. The narrator does not resolve it. Louis cannot know. The reader cannot know.